

Scaling Up Microfinance

Encouraging Innovation & Developing Talent Webinar April 30, 2013

Presenter Bio

Monica McGrath is the Vice Dean of Administration for The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania's non-degree executive education programs including open enrollment and custom programs. She is also an Adjunct Assistant Professor of Management at The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania where she has taught courses in leadership, organizational behavior, teamwork, and negotiations. She teaches in both public and custom programs for Wharton Executive Education Aresty Institute. Course topics have included succession planning, mentoring, internal coaching, teamwork, talent management, negotiations, emotional intelligence and women in leadership roles. Monica is the owner of Resources for Leadership, Inc. a leadership consulting company working with Fortune 500 companies and not for profit organizations.

Her work at Wharton serving as academic director of Women's World Banking Center for Microfinance Leadership Program, and two Goldman Sachs Foundation programs; the 10,000 Women Initiative and the 10,000 Small Business Initiative, have established her as a specialist in the design of action oriented learning experiences.

